

NCC Member Focus

Todd is among the newest members of the National Coal Council having been appointed in 2014. He follows in the footsteps of former NCC member Allen Alexander who recently retired from Savage. Todd brings to the Council a unique, multi-transport management perspective. Thanks for your service Todd!!

Todd Savage has literally grown up with the company and has served Savage Services Corporation for the last 39 years. His experience with the company has included on-site operations management, business development in the coal and power generation industry and project development from creation through implementation. He is experienced in developing creative solutions for challenging materials management and transportation systems issues.

His insight and creativity in solving materials management, transportation issues and related facility operations has been integral in shaping the philosophy and business model of Savage and creating value for customers.

Todd began his career at Savage dispatching over 100 trucks hauling coal and cement. He moved on to manage a transload facility and distribution network in Las Vegas, Nevada. Todd spent several years in business development, where he helped achieve significant cost savings in providing fuel handling services for coal-fired power plants. Since 1999, Todd has served as a Group Leader focused primarily on the Coal and Power Generation industries. For the past two years, he has led his company's efforts in the oil and gas field services business.

Todd serves on the Board of Directors for Savage Companies and the Utah Mining Association. He earned a degree in Business Management from the University of Phoenix.
